RE: European Union (EU) 2006 Directive entitled the Reduction of Hazardous Substances in Electronic Equipment and Devices

RACO/BELL products are considered exempt from the requirements of The European Union (EU) 2006 Directive called the Reduction of Hazardous Substances in Electronic Equipment and Devices following review of the standard. This is primarily because our products do not consume electricity; they become part of a fixed installation, and are not included in the 10 product categories defined in the EU directive.

Sincerely,

M. Ayrton
